More commuter parking at St Marys Station is on the way

Planning approval has been granted for an additional two levels to be added to the existing multi-storey car park on Harris Street, St Marys. The project is jointly funded by the Australian and NSW Governments. The project will provide around 250 new commuter parking spaces and would support the proposed new Sydney Metro - Western Sydney Airport interchange at St Marys. The overall net increase in commuter car parking at St Marys is expected to be around 120 spaces following the Sydney Metro - Western Sydney Airport interchange upgrade.

Thank you to everyone who made a submission on the Review of Environmental Factors. Feedback received from the community will be considered during the detailed design phase of the project. A copy of the Determination Report, including responses to submissions is available on our website at transport.nsw.gov.au/stmarys.

Next steps

We have engaged AW Edwards to design and construct the additional levels on behalf of Transport for NSW, and detailed design is now underway.

Site investigations will begin in the coming weeks, including survey work around the existing car park. Major construction of the car park extension will commence in the coming months, with the additional levels expected to be complete and open to the community in early 2022.
