

The NSW Government is transforming the Redfern North Eveleigh Precinct into a great new place for Sydney to enable jobs of the future, provide housing, and create new open spaces and places for people to socialise.

This document answers questions asked at the livestream event on Tuesday 9 August 2022 that could not be answered on the night.

Why is the project called Redfern North Eveleigh and not Darlington?

The site is part of the Eveleigh Railway Workshops, which is listed on the State Heritage Register, and the 2008 planning approval refers to the North Eveleigh site.

The Vision Statement combined aspirations for Redfern Station upgrade work with North Eveleigh, hence the use of Redfern North Eveleigh.

What is the distance of the residential towers from Wilson Street?

The residential towers on the rail corridor are approximately 70m from the nearest edge of Wilson Street.

Where is the physical scale model? Is it publicly accessible?

Yes, the scale model is available in the City of Sydney customer service centre in Town Hall House, Level 2, 456 Kent Street. The customer service centre is 9am – 5pm, Monday to Friday.
